THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1915.

Croquet is, doubtless, a mild-Victorian game, and that is the worst that can be said of it. It is gentle, polite, unostentatious. The prim lady may participate without relaxing her dignity. The athlete and the octogenarian may manipulate the mallet with equal skill. It is a game for everyone, a game which pleases without wearying, which kills time without killing energy, which brings one into the open but not into undue perspiration. In these days croquet is pooh-poohed. Golf, with its long, rapid "hikes," is popular; tennis with its hoppings and skipplings and its waving of arms is highly commended. But croquet is scorned as mollycoddish and effeminate. In most things the escape from Victorian trippery and prudery and quiescence is a blessing. But croquet deserves to be retained or resuscitated. For the tired man or woman who seeks wholesome and restful recreation, there is nothing better than a mild contest amid the wickets under the apple trees. It may be reminiscent of crinolines, gaiters and beavers, but it is none the less good. The best the Victorians accomplished was in the way of mildness. A touch of mildness in these mad rushing times would be a definite benefit.

Immigration officers at Washington continue to note with interest the steady decline in the number of persons emigrating from Ireland. Not only is the number coming to the United States declining, but there is a decline equally noticeable in the numbers going to other countries. A comparison is made for the three months of 1913, 1914 and 1915, in recent statistics, and later on a similar comparison will be made with the whole of the year 1915. For the first three months of 1913, 4,561 persons emigrated from Ireland. For the first three months of 1914 the number was 2,657, and for the first three months of 1915 it was 1,098. The war may now be having something to do with the decrease. It is said, but obviously there are other causes operating.

A graceful courtesy to this country from a grateful foreigner is the gift to the Toledo Museum of Art of Van Dyck's sketch for his picture of "St. Martin Parting His Mantle." The work is the choicest treasure in the collection of Charles Leon Cardon of Brussels, artist and art collector, and is presented by him through Brand Whitlock, the American minister, as a token of appreciation for what the people of the United States have done for Belgium in the direst emergency in her history. In the picture St. Martin is represented as cutting his mantle and sharing it with a poor man, so that there is peculiar appropriateness in its selection for the purpose to which it has been applied by its patriotic and great-hearted donor.

If the public service commission assumes the task of ridding the state of its railroad grade crossings it has its work cut out for it. If the creation of grade crossings when first constructed had been restricted their removal now would not be so difficult, says Philadelphia Press. Their removal in cities has been under way for some years by the joint effort and expense of cities and railroads. They are in process of early extinction in all the larger cities of the state, but in the country and smaller towns they stick fast. The railroads naturally shrink from the heavy expense of their removal, and the grade crossing remains a deadly menace to travel in every section of the state.

Tiflis, which the czar has been terming "a pearl of the Russian crown," was described by Bryce as "a human melting pot, a city of contrasts and mixtures, into which elements have been poured from half Europe and Asia, and show no signs of combining." The description holds good today, for there are said to be seventy languages spoken in the ancient city.

Of nearly twenty thousand graduates of reformatories and industrial schools now serving in the British army, many have covered themselves with glory and received special honors for brave conduct. This goes to prove that in their first careers they were merely suffering either for lack of strenuous opportunities or from misdirected energies.

CLAY-WAHL NUPTIALS

Rarely are extreme beauty and simplicity so happily combined as in the appointments for the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Wahl's daughter, Margie Grace, and Mr. Edwin Arlington Clay, only son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Clay, of Perryburg, Ohio, which took place at high noon Thursday, November 11th, at the Wahl home on Washington street. Only the immediate families witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. William Kraft, pastor of the First Christian church, Rogers, O., formerly of Vermillion, who used the beautiful double ring ceremony.

Clusters of white chrysanthemums and pink roses enhanced the beauty of the rooms, which were beautifully decorated, the color note of pink and white being used in all the appointments and the gowns.

At the first thrilling notes of the Lohengrin bridal chorus, played by Miss Mae McGraw, little Miss Bernice Sahl, niece of the bride, descended the stairway strewn with flowers in the path of the bride and the attendants. Little Miss Wahlene Otto, niece of the bride, acted as ring bearer. The bridesmaid, Miss Theo Thompson, of Newcastle, Pa., wore a gown of pink satin, flounced with cream lace.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of ivory satin-de-chine with a bodice of silver lace, and carried a shower cluster of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. Her veil of tulle was embroidered in white silk and formed a little cap which was caught in place with a wreath of orange blossoms. The bride's only ornament was an Eastern Star lavalier set with diamonds and pearls, the gift of the groom.

Mr. Emerson L. Morel, of New Orleans, La., served Mr. Clay as best man.

The bride and groom and their two attendants were classmates at Hiram College.

Immediately after a five-course dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Clay left for an eastern trip, Mrs. Clay being modishly attired in a suit of green and white. After the first of December they will be at home on West Second street, Perryburg, Ohio.—Vermillion News.

MARRIED.

Wednesday evening at 6:30 occurred the marriage of Mr. Henry Rhodes and Miss Frederica Bower, of Crestline, O., at St. Rose's parsonage, Rev. Father Keibel officiating. The happy couple will commence housekeeping at once in their pretty home on Fifth street.

ROAD SIGNS

The county commissioners and Engineer Gallier are looking at signs and expect soon to install them, in accordance with the Cass road law, at principal points in the county so that travelers may readily find their way without inquiring.—Sentinel.

Really! Can it be true that Wood county will ever wake up and get in line with other and more progressive counties of the State. Surely we have been "sitting in darkness" long enough and if the present officials will get out of the old rut and do something to prove themselves worthy of their positions, the good people of the county will have reason to call them something better than mere salary receivers.

Beware of Cheap Substitutes.

In these days of keen competition it is important that the public should see that they get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and not take substitutes sold for the sake of extra profit. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has stood the test and been approved for more than forty years. For sale by all dealers.

CHURCH BAZAAR

The Bazaar given by St. Rose church last week was a brilliant success and netted the church about $1600. There was a splendid attendance, notwithstanding the inclement weather, and the big crowds were given an opportunity to enjoy themselves, and they did.

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS DEPEND UPON YOUR LIVER.

That sluggish liver with its sluggish flow of bile is what makes the world look so dark at times. Dr. King's New Life Pills go straight to the root of the difficulty by waking up the action of the liver and increasing the bile. Dr. King's New Life Pills cause the bowels to act more freely and drive away those "moody days." 25c a bottle.

THE NEXT BEST THING TO THE PINE FOREST FOR COLDS IS—
Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey, which goes to the very root of cold troubles. It clears the throat and gives relief from that clogged and stuffed feeling. The pines have ever been the friend of man in driving away colds. Moreover, the pine-honey qualities are peculiarly effective in fighting children's colds. Remember that a cold broken at the start greatly removes the possibility of complications. 25c.
